8. 3 controlled atmosphere modules (forcing rooms): temperature, humidity, and oxygen level. The 3 modules are built from thermo-insulating metal panels.

9. Specific equipment for a nursery.

10. Mother orchard of scion branches and seed, on an area of 1.45 ha where genetic varieties of walnuts are preserved. The quantity of scion branches that can be harvested from this mother plantation is currently sufficient to produce over 100,000 grafts.

Market and development potential

There is a high growth potential due to European funding programs designed to support new walnut orchards, with walnut species being the most sought-after for such programs.

The quality and productivity of Romanian varieties are confirmed by quality awards and distinctions won through participation in various thematic competitions, both domestically and internationally.
