Mobile Safety Technology Asset

An opportunity to acquire a proprietary mobile safety technology asset focused on automated emergency escalation in situations where a user is unable to physically operate their smartphone.

The platform is an Android-based, on-device Auto-SOS escalation engine designed to enhance personal safety through intelligent emergency response automation. Unlike conventional mobile applications, the technology operates as a proactive safety layer capable of initiating escalation workflows when the user becomes unresponsive.

Core Functionality

The system is engineered to:

- Trigger a confirmation countdown during a potential emergency event
- Detect absence of user interaction or response
- Automatically escalate through SMS notifications containing the user's last known location
- Optionally initiate automated voice calls to pre-designated trusted contacts
- Operate directly on-device for enhanced responsiveness and reliability

Strategic Value

The asset may be highly relevant for:

- Mobile application developers
- Personal safety technology companies
- Enterprise workforce safety platforms
- Telecommunications providers
- OEM / smartphone device manufacturers
- Connected mobility and smart device ecosystems

The technology addresses growing global demand for personal safety, lone-worker protection, emergency automation, and intelligent mobile response systems.

Transaction Scope

The proposed transfer package may include:

- Full source code ownership
- Core process architecture and workflow logic
- Build and release documentation
- Integration and deployment guidance
- Technical transition support
