Whether establishing a business, center of operations, or a hub, Switzerland has found the solution to tailor to the most discerning and savvy international clientele with its unsurpassed, meticulous attention to detail, financial security of its services and its untarnished reputation for secrecy.

These very favorable and liberal business habitat attracted a lot of talent & capital, further propelling the Swiss domestic industry and its financial sector to new heights. In order to accommodate to this ever-growing influx of foreign capital and to offer a more tailored and customer-oriented approach, the Private Swiss Asset Management & Para-banking sectors came into existence.

Swiss credibility for financial services and banking is unsurpassed. Owning a Para-Banking, Fintech, Financial or Trust Company allows one to join the exclusive ranks of world's most renowned and respected financial institutions. Switzerland's reputation for quality and security in financial services is arguably the best in the world, and its regulatory regime is friendly.

Regulatory Premise

The last couple of years have been very turbulent in terms of the regulatory framework. FINMA, Switzerland's Financial Market Supervisory Authority introduced many new rules and regulations aimed at enhancing the levels of reporting and ultimately transparency. The complexity of these regulations warrants a professional and fully transparent approach, shared between the various types of affiliation and licenses issued by FINMA. This approach ultimately translates into consolidation of the market with only a handful of fully compliant & licensed and operating businesses remaining at the end of the so called 'grace period' which expired at the end of 2022.
